

Alberta Leads Wages Paid to Farm Help Higher in All Provinces

OTTAWA, June 21.—(CP)—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported last night that the rate of wages paid to farm help at May 15, 1943, increased sharply as compared with the same date of 1941 and 1942.

The increase, the bureau said, occurred in all provinces, and for the country as a whole the average rate of wages paid to farm laborers was 75 per cent higher than in 1941 and 1942.

Where the employee worked his own board, the average rate of wages for day help was $3.15 per day, compared with $2.37 at May 15, 1942. For men hired by the month, board provided, the average rate of wages in 1943 was $51.46, against $42.49 in 1942.

No Board Rate
When no board was provided, the average monthly rate was $71.75 in 1943 as compared with $58.80 in the previous year. Wage rates for day help were "uniformly high," but reached the highest mark in Alberta where the rate with board provided was $2.80 per day.

For help paid by the month, with board, the highest rate also was paid in Alberta, where it stood at $61.84 per month. Where no board was provided, the daily average rate was highest in British Columbia, the bureau said.

Figures included in the report, the bureau said, were provided by farm correspondents in all provinces of Canada. Since collection of this data has begun in 1940, no comparable figures for previous years are available.

Tables Give Details

The first of the following tables lists wage rates paid farm laborers by day in all Canadian provinces, with and without board, and the second lists the wage paid monthly to farm laborers, with and without board, at May 15, 1941, 1942, and 1943.

Half Canada's Population of British Origin	Chamber Elects Gordon Newton Region Director

Half Canada's Chamber Elects Population of Gordon Newton Region Director

OTTAWA, June 21.—(CP)—The census of 1941 showed that one out of two persons in Canada were of British Isles origin. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Saturday. The census showed that roughly one person in three was of French origin and one in six of European descent.

One of every 100 persons was Asiatic and a similar proportion was Indian and Eskimo. Comparatively in 1931, the distribution showed a slight increase in the proportion of British Isles races, and a correspondingly higher ratio of persons of French racial origin.

PERCENTAGE FIGURES
Percentages of the total population in 1941 by groups, with percentages for 1931, in parentheses, follow:

British, 30.5 (28.2); other European, 37.8 (37.6); Asiatic, 0.6 (0.5); Indian and Eskimo, 0.9 (0.8); half-breeds on reserves in 1931 only, 11.1 (2.1).

A comparison of the net changes during the past decade showed that the number of British Isles people increased in numbers from 3,580,071 to 5,175,904, or 43 per cent, the bureau said. The number of French origin increased from 2,077,000 to 2,480,008, or 19.5 per cent.

A falling off of the number of Chinese in Canada was the principal cause for a decrease in the percentage of the Chinese population, per cent in the number of Asiatics, though the population of Japanese origin remained fairly constant, amounting to 22,148, in 1941, or 0.5 per cent less than in 1931.

The largest proportionate gains among other European races individually were noted among Netherlands, Czechs and Slovaks, Ukrainians, Hungarians, Poles and Italians.

BRITISH TOTALS
The 1941 census figures showed that British Isles races were relatively most numerous in Prince Edward Island, 92.8 per cent; New Brunswick, 89.1 per cent; Nova Scotia, 77.1 per cent; Ontario, 72.1; British Columbia, 69.9; Saskatchewan, 66.5; Alberta, 60.2; Manitoba, 49.4; Saskatchewan, 44.4, and Quebec, 12.6.

In Quebec, persons of French origin comprised 92.8 per cent of the total population. In the provinces, those of French origin ranged from 35.8 per cent in Brunswick to 2.7 per cent in British Columbia.

Other European races collectively were proportionately highest in the Prairie provinces, accounting for 47.6 per cent of the population of Saskatchewan, 41.1 per cent of the population of Alberta and 36.7 per cent of the population of Manitoba.

ASIATIC RACES
Asiatic races, with 37.5 per cent of their number in British Columbia, formed 5.2 per cent of the population of that province in 1941, as compared with 7.5 per cent in 1931. In each of the other provinces they were less than one per cent of the population.

King George Is Nice Man to Meet—Even If He Weren't King

WITH THE KING'S PARTY IN TUNISIA, June 17.—(Delayed)
AP.—King George is the kind of man you'd enjoy meeting, even if he weren't a king.
We have met him twice on this tour. The first time it was formal and all you noticed was that he is tall and slender with deep, blue eyes and a handsome, sensible face. His handshake was firm and purposeful, as though he meant it. He has a pleasant voice.
The second time it was wholly informal. He had just driven into the grounds in front of the villa where he was staying. It was late at night. With his party and some British and American officers he came out for a stroll in the brilliant moonlight.
He caught sight of us and stopped, asking if we weren't his priority. They were a short time before we had been hunting all over Tunisia for the last four or five hours trying to find the villa.
He expressed regret that there was no sincerity in his voice. Then he turned to an officer and said, "I hope you'll see that they have everything they need for the night. The king is here, immediately."
Then he wished us good-night. You could tell that he meant it.

Last Minute Move to Solve French Crisis

ALGERS, June 21.—Last-minute efforts to solve the French crisis have been stepped up by the French committee of national liberation started in private conversations with some officials estimating that there is a 50-50 chance of success by tomorrow.
The private conversations were undertaken after a short meeting of the committee this morning following a reported threat by Gen. de Gaulle to resign his post as premier. Swiss dispatches say R.A.F. R.C.A.F. attacks on Schneider works in Germany caused intense alarm.
De Gaulle presided at this morning's meeting and it was said that he expressed his desire to "quit and quite brief" but that both sides were willing to make another effort. Gen. Georges Catroux said he would attempt to draw up a compromise plan and the committee will meet again tomorrow.
Most observers regarded the continuation of the debate until tomorrow — despite Gen. de Gaulle's threats to leave — as a face victory for Gen. Henri Giraud, who has remained firm in the part of de Gaulle's demands for immediate and far-reaching army reforms.
The outcome, however, was highly uncertain.
Authoritative sources said de Gaulle made known during informal conversations that he intended to depart — tantamount to resigning office — if his demands were not met. Beirut, Syria, or Brazzaville, French equatorial Africa, the territory which de Gaulle desired, was not surprising if the Allies suggested to de Gaulle that his retirement would be the biggest contribution he could make toward the end of the war.
The dispatches also said that suggestion might also be made to Gen. Henri Giraud.

Reds Destroy 3,600 Planes In Seven Weeks

MOSCOW, June 21.—The Russians have destroyed more than 3,600 German planes in the past seven weeks in a determined campaign to cripple Axis air power in advance of an anticipated summer ground offensive, the Red Air Force announced today, on the eve of the second anniversary of the Nazi invasion.

The Sunday dispatch communiqué said that 276 German planes were shot down in aerial combat or on the ground in the past week in addition to large numbers destroyed and damaged in Soviet air raids on enemy airfields. This boosted the seven-week total to 2,645 while Soviet losses totaled 987—a ratio of nearly one to two.

Stepping up their aerial offensive, the Red Air Force bombers smashed anew at German airbases in the Bystrak-Karabov area at the junction of the central and southern fronts Saturday night, touching off large fires and explosions among hangars, parked aircraft and supply dumps.

WHERE DRIVE EXPECTED
It is in this sector that the Germans are expected to launch a summer drive northwest against Moscow, confirmation of the capital's fear. In anticipation of such a drive, the Russians have a river bridgehead on the northern bank of the Volga, where they killed 2,000 of the enemy in repelling 50 Axis counter attacks.

Three hundred Soviet troops were reported missing from the attack. Polish forces, including the 1st and 2nd divisions, are reported to be in the area. The attack was reported to be a surprise.

HIT ELECTRIC STATION
While the main body of the raiding force concentrated on the electric station at Moscow, the Germans also tried to bomb an electrical transformer station at Moscow, about five miles from the city center.

Baron Mannerheim Has Narrow Escape

STOCKHOLM, June 21.—(AP)—Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim, recently escaped death when he was caught in a sudden Finnish attack on the Soviet front. The attack was reported to be a surprise.

One of the many coal miners discharged from the army and returned to his former job to meet the emergency demand for fuel is J. C. McDonald of Florence, Nova Scotia, shown here with his commanding officer, Colonel F. L. Andrews, Commanding Officer of No. 6 District Depot, Halifax.

Digging coal is no job for a novice. So Mr. McDonald answers the Department of Labor plea, dons his uniform and returns to the mine. Baby J. C. Jr. and Mrs. McDonald bid him good-bye on his first day back.

While Canada, particularly the mid-West, relied on the United States for its fuel supply, we dig our own plentiful coal supplies during the war. Mr. McDonald is seen back at work on the coal face.

Many civilians, no matter what their work now, realize their patriotic duty is back in the mines, the home front lines. Claude Bartlett (left) Sydney bus driver, turns in fares, says good-bye. Patrick Birmingham spent 32 years in the mines, now finishes his last carpentry job before going back.

Cotton Futures

Julie Bishop, featured by Warner Bros. in "Action in the North Atlantic" wears cotton with a new treatment of beige and blue chambray. The dress has a drawstring neckline with the same finish used in the short sleeves. A row of beige buttons march down the front. At the right Faye Emerson who appears in "Air Force," models a becoming new frock of interesting fabric. Combining cotton and a little rayon in a huge plaid design, the colors shade pale yellow to orange and brown. The dress is styled with a drop shoulder line and the fullness caught into a smooth waist with a broad dark brown leather belt.

How Accurate Bombing Spared City of Tunis

Precision bombing by Allied airmen served a double purpose in the campaign for Tunis—it carefully preserved the city itself while the destructive force was concentrated on true military objectives. The upper picture, taken after Allied troops marched in, shows business and residential buildings unscathed. But along the waterfront (below) was a scene of almost complete desolation. Docks, warehouses and other installations were blasted, and many acres had been cleared of debris before Tunis was captured.

Women Won't Talk

By RENE RYERSON MART

CHAPTER XX
I DIDN'T sleep much that night because of something that occurred to me after I went upstairs to bed.

I remembered about the gun. Death Walker had been nervous about Margaret and me staying alone in the big house at night and he had insisted that I have a revolver for protection. But I had been more afraid of the gun than I had of prowlers, so I put it far back in one of the drawers of my writing desk.

I started toward the desk by the window, before I realized that the gun wouldn't be there. It was in my room—the turquoise room. So I got into bed and turned on the light. But remembering about the gun had started the whole hideous evening revolving in my mind—my walk to Mattison's cottage, my share in the woods how far away and unreal that seemed now. Shaw had been Connie into a terrified confusion by showing her the heel she had lost in the ravine and the note from Derek. Suddenly I sat straight up in bed. What a blind fool I had been. That note—it hadn't been sent to Connie at all.

That's how it happened that I lay awake until the black velvet squares of the windows turned gray and the birds began to cheep. I fell asleep then from sheer exhaustion, and it was broad daylight when I awoke.

I got up and slipped on a brilliant Chinese robe, a favorite of mine with its wide sleeves lined with scarlet silk, and went down the hall to the turquoise room—Connie's for the time being. The door was ajar and the room was empty. I went over to the desk and pulled was in a state of collapse. The corner and the sheriff and the assistant prosecutor conferred, and then the coroner said that the inquest would be adjourned until this week as Margaret Grady could be present to answer questions.

Derek's father and step-mother had arrived when we got home. They were up in Margaret's room. Will Grady is still a handsome man, despite his graying hair. Derek got his looks from him. Will rose to his feet and shook hands with me and introduced me to his wife. She was his blond, flashy. And her eyes were set too close together. She murmured a conventional acknowledgment, and her eyes went over me jealously from patent pumps to Hevelon nail polish.

Connie and I were called as the first witnesses. We were sworn in and had to tell exactly how and where we found Derek's body. There were no cross-questions. I wasn't much of an ordeal.

Then Chief Deputy Shaw took the stand. He began with my telephone call to the sheriff's office, gave the time the call came in, proceeded briskly to tell of his arrival at Kraikower, his inspection of the body, and ended with a brief summation of our statements to him which fixed the probable time of the crime.

Next he produced some photographs of the body and the cave and showed them to the coroner. Also the bullet which had been taken from Derek's body. Shaw said it was a bullet from a .38 but that the gun from which it had been fired had not yet been found.

The coroner then asked him if that was all and he said it was. I knew I gasped. He hadn't mentioned the heel from Connie's slipper that had been found under Derek's body, or the note from Derek.

The autopsy surgeon was the next witness called. He described the bullet wound in technical terms which shimmered down to the fact that one bullet had been fired into Derek's chest and had pierced his heart. Death, he said, had been instantaneous.

The doctor's closing statement carried me back to that moment in the ravine when I had knelt beside Derek's body and felt his warm cheek and wondered at the surprised look on his dead face. Death had not only been quick, I thought, it had been unexpected. It had come from the hand of someone in whom he had never suspected danger. Black horror again rolled over my mind.

I got a grip on myself and tried to fasten my attention on the present proceedings in that musty, ill-ventilated court house ante-room. The coroner was calling for Margaret Grady to take the stand.

Deputy Shaw got to his feet again. He explained that he had served Mrs. Grady, the "grandmother" of the dead man, with a summons to appear, because she

Aluminum Firm Again Attacked

MONTREAL, June 21.—(CP)—M. J. Coldwell, national C.C.F. party leader, told the Quebec division of the C.C.F. Saturday night that the "United Nations are being sold down the Saguenay river to the Aluminum Company of Canada."

Mr. Coldwell resumed the attack he made on the Aluminum Company in the House of Commons last week after the Quebec section delegates in annual convention passed resolutions asking for the expropriation of the Aluminum Company and of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated.

One resolution called on the Dominion government to act under the National Resources Mobilization Act to take over the Aluminum Company property, and suggested inclusion of the huge Shawinigan Power developed in northern Quebec at the end of the war. The motion also included congratulations to Mr. Coldwell for his address in parliament about the company.

Quebec Division Of C.C.F. Adopts Plan For Labor

MONTREAL, June 21.—(CP)—The Quebec division of the C.C.F. at its ninth annual convention here yesterday adopted a detailed plan of procedure for direct affiliation of trades unions with the organization in Quebec.

The move followed that of the C.C.F. and labor groups in Nova Scotia, where the United Mine Workers of America is affiliated with the political body since the way was cleared at a C.C.F.-Labor conference in Toronto.

Prof. Frank R. Scott of Montreal was re-elected president of the Quebec section.

Indian Is Held In Fire Death Of Two Women

CRANBROOK, B.C., June 21.—(CP)—Moses Isaac, 34-year-old Indian, is being held in connection with the deaths of two Indian women, Mrs. Joe Eugene, 20, and Mrs. Willie Stewart, 28. Bodies of the two women were found in the smoldering ruins of their home on the Shuswap reserve near Revelstoke late Friday.

It is alleged the trio held a party in the home prior to the fire noticed by neighbors. Identification of the women was made largely through jewelry owned by them.

Their husbands are serving with the Canadian army overseas.

Russian Magazine Sees Complicity In Britain, States

MOSCOW, June 18.—(Delayed)—(AP)—The new magazine "War and the Workers' Class," published by the labor union of Russia, said today that "unhealthy tendencies of complicity" had been noted in the British and American press a month after the Tunisian victory. Isolations "are actively trying to prevent Allied armies from invading Europe," it added.

In the most outspoken article on Japan to appear in the Russian press, the magazine said that "as soon as the Japanese meet the serious resistance of Allied forces they are unable to retain the strategic initiative."
